RESCUED FROM THE GRAVE.

Man Who Was Burled Seven Feet in the Earth Salutes His Undertaker. "It sounds like a good deal to say, but I once know a man who died and was buried on the overland trail to California, and afterwart made his appearance in the Placer Minus at Frickly Pear City—and it wasn't his ghost either, but himself in the Roch." This was the reply which a well-known resident of Helens, Montana, made to a reporter who was applying the reminfacence extractor.
"In the spring of '40" continued the citiz n. "In the spring of '45" continued the citiz n, "when the California gold excitement was at its beight, in company with a large party I crossed the plains. After getting well under way the cholera broke out among us and several died. Among other deaths was that of a man named W Among other deaths was that of a man named W. H. Clark, of Heury County, Missouri. We buried him near the point where the Santa Fe irall crossed the Arkanesa river. We had no coffin, but wrapped him in his blankets and inclosing him in a covering of bark stripped from the cottonwood trees we planted him about seven feet deep in the sand and piled logs on the grave to keep the wolves from digging him up. The next morning we moved on.

"I remained in California until '65, and was then altracted to Montana by the gold excitement. In 1865, while in the diggings at what is known as Montana City, I was startied at meeting Clark, whom, with my own eyes. I had seen buried on the Arkansas River mineicen years before. The recognition was mutual, and on my expressing my surprise be related to me that after our party had turied him and proceeded on toward California a party of Indiana came along and, seeing lis newmade grave, dug him up for the sake of his blankets and clothing. As he showed signs of life they applied restoratives, and the result was that he was brought back to life and healts. He lived a mong the Indians for several years and afterward came to Montana.
